SEMINAR

DECOLONIZING
DEVELOPMENT
EDUCATION

How can we shape educational work and civic engagement in ways that do not reproduce colonial patterns of thought? Which methods support a decolonial practice – and what does this mean concretely for our engagement in projects, initiatives, and partnerships?

Within this seminar, we warmly invite students, volunteers, educators, and multipliers to sharpen perspectives together and explore new approaches. Participation is open to everyone interested in learning more about global justice and colonial continuities.

The Adivasi-Tea-Project (ATP) has been working in partnership with Adivasis (Indigenous communities) in the Nilgiri Hills of South India for 30 years, promoting education for sustainable development. Göttingen Postkolonial is an open network in the Göttingen region that addresses the legacies of colonial history, postcolonial present realities, and visions of a decolonial future.

Seminar contents:

- Colonial-critical city tour (Friday, 3–5 pm)
- Methods of decolonial educational work
- Lecture on colonial continuities in India – with a special focus on the situation of Indigenous peoples (Saturday, 4–7 pm)
- Spaces for exchange and reflection on global power structures, cooperation with Indigenous organizations, and participants' own practices
- Opportunities for networking with other engaged individuals and initiatives

This seminar provides a space to think critically, learn from one another, and develop possibilities for solidarity-based and respectful collaboration.

We look forward to your participation and a lively discussion!
